The US-India Strategic Partnership Forum (USISPF) welcomes the 10-year defense framework pact signed by the U.S. Secretary of War, Peter Hegseth and India's Minister of Defence, Shri. Rajnath Singh in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia. The 10-year defense framework pact will provide more concrete policy direction and reinforce the robust partnership between Washington and New Delhi. As both the Minister and Secretary underscored, the pact is a strong signal of growing strategic convergence. It emphasizes the priorities of both democracies towards securing a free, open, and rules-based Indo-Pacific region.

USISPF is committed to working with both the administration and member companies to strengthen bilateral defense ties. This significant development reflects the deepening strategic partnership between our two nations and underscores shared commitments to regional security, technology cooperation, and economic growth. We look forward to advancing opportunities in defense, innovation, and U.S.-India collaboration that will support our boarder mission of strengthening ties between our two nations.

About the US-India Strategic Partnership Forum (USISPF):
